

Upon successful completion of the Information Technology, General Studies track, graduates should be able to:

- Identify basic network components
- Analyze the technical needs of end users
- Develop a website using industry standards
- Identify various computer security threats
- Troubleshoot and repair common computer problems